The Foundation is concerned about the reduction of government subsidies for health care which makes access to health care even more difficult, particularly in the rural areas where health care coverage is already significantly more limited than in urban areas. The Foundation also notes that women and indigenous groups are adversely affected by this reduction in subsidies. The Black Caucus Foundation urges the government to allocate a higher percentage of its GDP to the health sector and to ensure that its system of subsidies does not discriminate against the most disadvantaged and marginalized groups.
